

British Medical Periodicals, 1938–61*

By A. M. SHADRAKE, M.A., A.L.A.

*Library of the Royal College of Surgeons of England
London, England*

THIS list of British medical periodicals is an attempt to continue Mr. W. R. Le Fanu's British Periodicals of Medicine; a Chronological List. It covers the period 1938–61, but only those periodicals published in Great Britain and Ireland are included, the material of the "British Lands" of Mr. Le Fanu's list being excluded. Countries like Canada, Australia, India, and Pakistan, though members of the Commonwealth, are now independent sovereign states and publish a large number of medical periodicals of their own.

Reports of societies and hospitals have not been included and neither have the various colloquia or progress volumes which appear more or less annually. Although material on the periphery of medicine, like antivivisection, spiritual healing, and chemists' journals, has been excluded, medicine has in general been treated more broadly than in Mr. Le Fanu's list in recognition of developments in the last two or three decades.

The periodicals in this supplement have been arranged in a numbered alphabetical list, this being thought the most useful arrangement, but for convenience an appendix has been added in which the journals, indicated by their running numbers, have been arranged according to the year in which they began publication.

To obtain particulars of some journals has been difficult, and the compiler suspects that in a few instances periodicals may actually have ceased publication or unhappily have been completely overlooked. He records with great appreciation the assistance and encouragement he has received from Mr. W. R. Le Fanu and wishes to thank Mr. C. H. Fleurent of the British Medical Journal for permitting him to see the third edition of World Medical Periodicals while still in proof and Dr. F. N. L. Poynter for allowing him to consult the periodical catalogs of the Wellcome Historical Medical Library.
